-Washington Post

“A rollicking, bawdy fable reminiscent of Buster Keaton and Charlie Chaplin!”

-San Francisco Chronicle

“A droll, lusty comedy! Folkloric charm buoyed by comic inventiveness!”

-Los Angeles Times

“An irresistible tale of love and perseverance with magic at its heart!”

-Seattle Times

“A treat for the eyes and funny bone!”

-Variety

“Charming and visually inventive! A sweet and silly delight.”

-San Francisco Bay Guardian

“A nonstop charm machine!” -LA Weekly

“Imaginative, fabulous!” -East Bay Express

“Truly romantic! Easy on the eyes, ears and funny bone!” -Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

Welcome to Absurdistan, a small village in the high desert mountains, just on the outskirts of reality, where magical visions and bizarre events fuse together.

The village is facing a water shortage, but the men are too lazy to fix a rickety pipeline and the women are getting fed up with their good-for-nothing husbands. Led by young Aya, the women make a simple vow: “No water, no sex.” The men’s only hope is Temelko, whose long-promised wedding with Aya is put on hold until he finds a solution for the water problem.
