

FIRST RUN FEATURES PRESENTS

Bert Stern: Original Mad Man is the definitive voyage into the life and work of one of the greatest American photographers of all time.

An original Madison Avenue "mad man," Stern's images helped create modern advertising; his ground-breaking campaign for Smirnoff forever changed the industry. The iconic photos he took of celebrities like Marilyn Monroe, Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton, Audrey Hepburn, Shirley MacLaine, Sophia Loren, Twiggy, and the infamous Lolita image from Kubrick's film, minted Stern – along with Irving Penn and Richard Avedon – as a celebrity in his own right. Indeed, his photos from Monroe's "Last Sitting" are considered to be the ultimate images of the 20th century icon.

After marrying the ballet dancer Allegra Kent, the kid from Brooklyn was sitting on top of the world...until a dramatic fall from grace.

"Bert Stern was photography's baddest bad boy. But Stern hid himself behind his camera – until now."

the Atlantic

"Eye-opening, intriguing and timely. A highly intimate, fascinating portrait."

THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

"Stern says: 'I'm a prisoner of all the things I've done.' Oh, but what a whole lot of things he's done."

VOGUE

"Absolutely smashing! A terrific, jaw-droppingly candid documentary."

FILM JOURNAL INTERNATIONAL

"Can't wait for the next Mad Men? Well, catch this thrilling biography of one of American photography's all-time greats."
