"A vitally important story."

*-Amy Biancolli,
SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE*

"Fascinating!"

*-Andrew Schenker,
TIME OUT NEW YORK*

"A worthy portrait of a phenomenal woman. Thorough and exciting."

-John Anderson, VARIETY

"Makes fiction pale by comparison. An involving crash course in the ultra-turbulent history of Pakistan."

-Kenneth Turan, LOS ANGELES TIMES

"Impressive! The film gives us a strong sense of Bhutto's personality and strength."

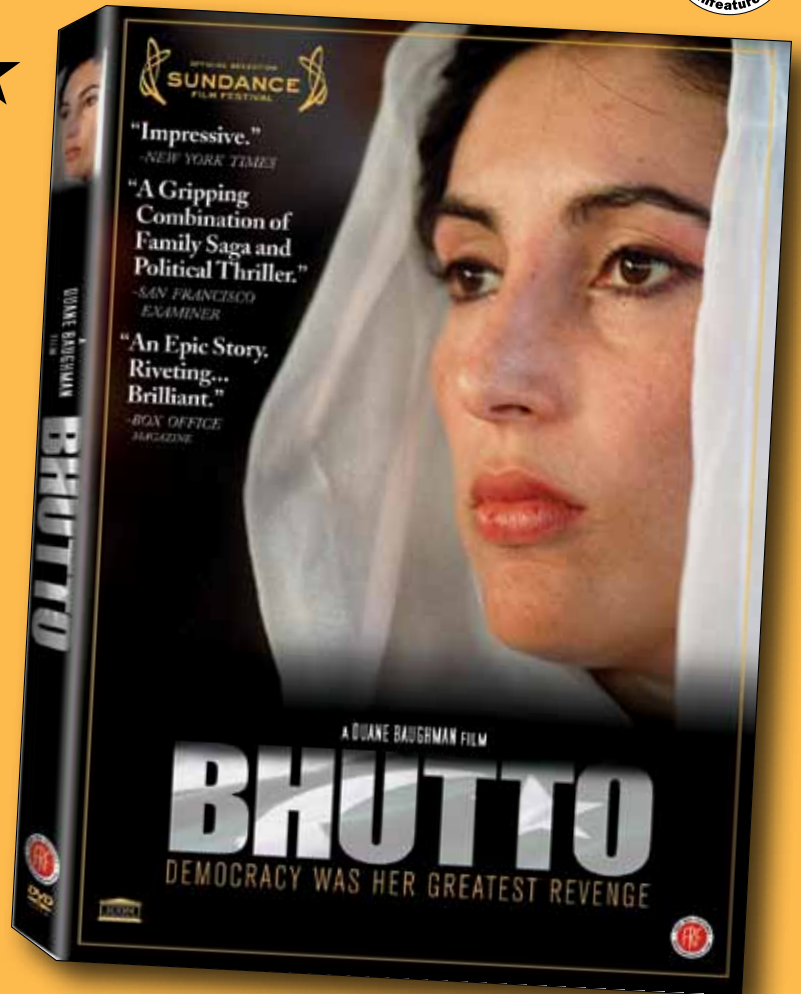

-Mike Hale, THE NEW YORK TIMES

"A spellbinding portrait that moves with the speed, intensity and suspense of a psychological thriller. A riveting masterpiece."

-Amy Handler, MOVING PICTURES INTERNATIONAL

"Intelligent, Provocative, Dazzling! The soul of Benazir inhabits this film."

-Georgianne Nienaber, HUFFINGTON POST

The epic story of Benazir Bhutto, the first woman in history to lead a Muslim nation.

A favored daughter of the family often called the "Kennedys of Pakistan," Benazir was elected Prime Minister after her father was overthrown and executed by his own military. Her time in power saw acts of courage and controversy as she broke the Islamic glass ceiling, fought for the rights of women, and tried to quell the fires of religious extremism, while battling accusations of corruption.

A fascinating array of archival footage, never-before-heard audio of Benazir and interviews with family members and leading experts brings to life this tale of Shakespearean dimensions in the country The Economist calls "the World's most dangerous place."
