

FIRST RUN FEATURES PRESENTS

"A SHOCKING LOOK AT HOW FAR THE ENERGY INDUSTRY AND THE GOVERNMENT WILL GO TO CRUSH JUST ONE VOICE."

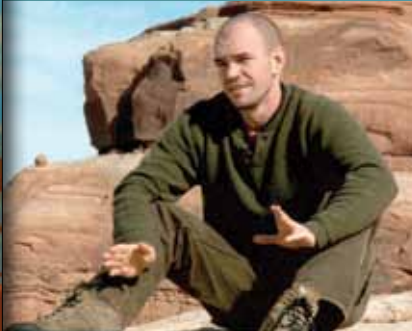

-Michael Moore, Filmmaker

"A BEAUTIFULLY TOLD STORY of a hero's journey filled with passion and sacrifice that tugs at the head and heart to the final scene."

-Jury, Traverse City Film Festival, for the Best American Film Award

"Brilliantly tells Tim's story. MOST INSPIRING!"

-Stefanie Penn Spear, HUFFINGTON POST

In 2008, as George W. Bush tried to gift the energy and mining industries thousands of acres of pristine Utah wilderness via a widely disputed federal auction, college student Tim DeChristopher decided to monkey-wrench the process. Bidding $1.7 million, he won 22,000 acres with no intention to drill.

For this astonishing (and successful) act of civil disobedience he was sent to federal prison. Bidder 70 tells the story of this peaceful warrior whose patriotism and willingness to sacrifice have ignited the climate justice movement.

"Powerful...Poignant." - THE NEW YORK TIMES

"A unique and moving story... inventive, poetic and original." - ART THREAT

"An intriguing tale of a very unusual relationship. Viewers might never get to see Wallace, but by the end of the film, they will feel like they know him and will hope for his release." - THIS WEEK IN NEW YORK

"Films like this are vital to our society." - URBANOLOGY

Herman Wallace may be the longest-serving prisoner in solitary confinement in America – 40 years and counting in a 6-by-9-foot cell. This award-winning documentary is a moving account of the remarkable expression his struggle finds in an unusual art project proposed by New York artist Jackie Sumell.

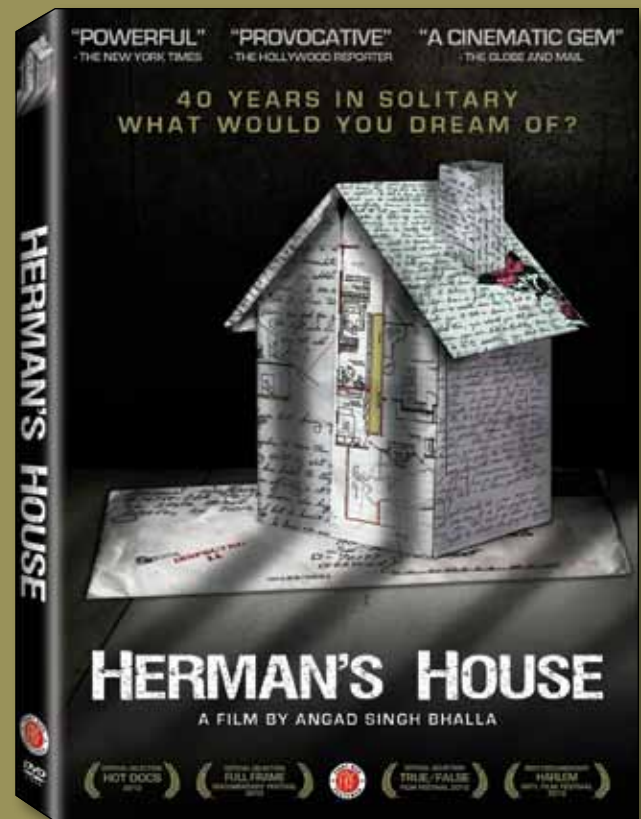

Featuring a full-scale model of Herman's cell and detailed plans of his dream home, the art project has brought thousands around the world face-to-face with the cruel and unusual punishment of long-term solitary confinement. Imagining Wallace's dream home began as a game and became an interrogation of justice and punishment in America.
