

FIRST RUN FEATURES PRESENTS

WINNER! NAACP IMAGE AWARD
FOR OUTSTANDING CHILDREN'S PROGRAM

What would it be like to grow up and become president of the United States? In I Can Be President: A Kid's-Eye View, a diverse group of children candidly share their thoughts on the subject, affirming the importance of having dreams at any age.

I Can Be President features interviews with elementary schoolers whose hopes and dreams - both hilarious and touching - come to life in animated sequences created by the award-winning animator Michael Sporn. One says that if kids could be president, there would be "free ice cream for all," while another promises "macaroni and cheese every day!"

Offering a young person's view of civics and ethics, I Can Be President: A Kid's-Eye View has lessons for all ages, with simple yet profound observations on diversity, war, life, being a leader and becoming an adult. All in all, it a promising vision of the nation's future.
