“Fascinating...a must see!”

-Benjamin Ivry, The Forward

This powerful documentary tells the story of Leon Blum – a Jew who served as prime minister of France, and who was also a prisoner of the Nazis at the Buchenwald concentration camp.

Blum, the first Jew to lead France, devoted his life to improving the well-being of workers and was an early champion of women's rights. In 1936, as the head of the Popular Front, an alliance of left-wing movements, he became prime minister. In 1940, his socialist views and Jewish heritage placed him in jeopardy, and the Vichy government deported him to Buchenwald. After the war, Blum was welcomed home by the French people and was re-elected prime minister in 1946.

“The excesses of Nazi Germany. Essential viewing!” -The Independent (UK)

French Director Claude Chabrol creates a masterful look at propaganda and media manipulation that is as engrossing as any of his thrillers. Brilliantly chosen newsreels and forgotten film footage produced by the Nazis and French collaborators offer an alternative history of the war that is shocking and grimly fascinating.
