

PRAISE FOR “HOWARD ZINN: YOU CAN’T BE NEUTRAL ON A MOVING TRAIN”

“As engaging and stimulating as the man himself, ‘Howard Zinn: You Can't Be Neutral on a Moving Train’ provides a brisk, warm profile of the historian and activist.” – Variety

“Tight and deceptively low key documentary lets the subject eloquently speak for himself. His words are augmented by well-chosen quotes from his books read by Matt Damon, and interviews with fellow activists like Daniel Berrigan and Daniel Ellsberg.” – New York Post

“If Fahrenheit 9/11 unveils the problem, then You Can’t Be Neutral on a Moving Train offers the hope that there indeed are solutions.” – The Boston Phoenix

“Smoothly incorporates archival material, including scenes of Mr. Zinn's public appearances... well-chosen excerpts from Mr. Zinn’s writing.” – New York Times

“A useful omnibus profile of the antiwar activist, historian, and author of ‘A People’s History of the United States’ ...long enough to get the point across and short enough to get you back out on the streets.” – The Boston Globe

“★★★★! Thoughtful, exciting, moving.” – Christian Science Monitor

“An excellent introduction to a man whose thoughts on war, peace and dissent have become increasingly influential in ever more confusing times.” – TVGuide.com

“Inspiring!” – New York Daily News

“A fascinating documentary film!” – Entertainment Insiders

“Engaging and all-too-brief...an extraordinary achievement.” – Film Journal International

“A solid introduction to Zinn’s life and work.” – The Oregonian

“Rousing and enlightening...it is thrilling to see the life of a man who has risked all to make a prophetic call for peace and justice in America.” – Spirituality and Health

“Entirely satisfactory...Zinn is one of the last of his kind.” – The Jewish Week

“Exhilarating...highly accessible.” – E Online

“This is a fine biography about a truly good, brave and honest man but it is also an incredibly detailed history lesson - like Zinn’s own ‘A History...’ ... Ellis and Mueller's terrific film turns the spotlight on a worthy subject and does him justice.” – Reeling Reviews

“In this season of leftwing documentaries, I can't imagine anything that will surpass Howard Zinn: You Can't Be Neutral on a Moving Train.” – Marxmail.org

“An engrossing and illuminating documentary tribute!” – Wolf Reviews
